New Finance Conference in Singapore for Institutional Asset Owners, Family Offices and Asset Managers Focused on or Interested in Impact Investing

Organized by the leading industry body of impact investing, the Global Impact Investing Network, this inaugural event will inform, engage and inspire finance professionals who mobilize capital to solve problems for people and the planet.

SINGAPORE, July 28, 2025: On Thursday July 31, regional and international finance professionals will convene at the Pan Pacific Singapore for the inaugural Asia Impact Forum from the Global Impact Investing Network (GIIN). The day prior, July 30, the GIIN will hold a full day training workshop at Deloitte Singapore which will provide an introduction to impact investing, designed for newcomers to the field. Tickets are still available for either or both events and can be purchased at the door or via the event website: https://events.thegiin.org/event/AsiaImpactForum

The Asia Impact Forum will feature panel discussions from impact investing leaders and subject matter experts hailing from the Asia Pacific region, including Temasek, Tsao Family Office, Mizuho, Nissay Asset Management and many others. Among a packed agenda, topics include:

- How family offices are expanding the boundaries of impact.
- How investors can support community-led climate solutions.
- How strategic investments in sustainable food debt can empower smallholder farmers, reduce food loss and promote climate-resilient agriculture.
- How impact investments are driving scalable, patient-centered healthcare solutions in Asia.
- How gender-lens investing and women-led capital strategies are expanding access, shaping portfolio decisions and influencing systems-level change.
- And much more.

"Asia is home to some of the world's most dynamic economies, vibrant communities and ambitious problem-solvers, and impact investing is a powerful engine to support all three," said Amit Bouri, CEO and co-founder of the GIIN. "It's also a region facing urgent and unique environmental and development challenges that require capital and expertise to tackle. With the launch of the Asia Impact Forum, the GIIN is deepening its commitment to help investors across the region mobilize capital in ways that deliver both financial returns and positive impact. I'm looking forward to gathering with a great group of leaders who are committed to solving problems for people and the planet."

Following the Asia Impact Forum, the GIIN's flagship 2025 Impact Forum will be held in Berlin on October 7 - 9. Check out the agenda and register on the GIIN's website: events.thegiin.org/event/ImpactForum2025
